Course Overview

In accredited training, a skill set refers to a defined group of competencies that enable individuals to perform specific tasks or roles to nationally recognised standards. Training is mapped to formal units of competency within a training package endorsed by the Australian Skills Quality Authority (ASQA).

These Skill Sets form part of the 11229NAT Certificate IV in Leadership and Innovation Dementia Services and are designed to further enhance specific skill within your role, including:

- » Dementia Support
- » Dementia Care
- » Leadership in Dementia
- » Palliative Care
- » Diversity and Professional Practice

Purpose and Use of Skill Sets

Targeted Upskilling: Ideal for workers who wish to gain specific capabilities without completing a full qualification.

Workforce Flexibility: Enables employers to quickly build capability in response to changing service models or regulatory shifts.

Pathways to Qualifications: Skill sets are credited toward full qualifications, supporting lifelong learning and career progression.

Shorter: These skill sets are delivered over a shorter period (depending on the number of units within the set) and students can do one or multiple skill sets when convenient.
